1. Purpose

In this document I will present findings that refer to the tests I performed on the website of "CARWIZ" - a platform to buy used cars from different car agencies .

The tests were performed on the various functions of the website. During the system testing phase I conducted a series of tests to evaluate the functionality, usability and performance of the "CARWIZ" website. The primary focus was to identify defects, validate requirements and ensure the website's overall reliability.

2. Application Overview

The website of "CARWIZ" is mainly used as a Web and Mobile website. Browsing the website you can perform several actions such as creating an account, searching for a car with specific criteria's and filters, save liked cars, trade in, making a comparison between several vehicles, apply for a meeting at the agency, financing check for buying a car.

The website is designed to be user friendly with a simple and intuitive interface that enables users to easily search for the right car.

Following the use of several features there is a very comfortable user experience, such as adding liked cars so you don't need to search for them again, a comparison tool for comparing different cars that you liked.

In addition, the website works with a financing company so that users who are interested in this service can do it on the site.

In conclusion the website provides a convenient vehicle search and purchasing experience with options for arranging payments, all in one platform.

4.Metrics

Test cases – Status

Severity bugs - status

Critical	Major	Moderate	Low	Total
4	1	2	3	10

5.Recommendations:

1. Fix all the bugs on Google chrome browser
2. Improve accessibility – adding accessibility bottom that provides changing size and color of text, background color and more
3. Add an option to change the language of the website to English\Arabic-Russian

6.Conclusion:

All the bugs were found on Google Chrome browser, but on other browsers such as Edge and Firefox . Most of the bugs were on severity level – critical which means you have no "work around" and you can't use the website and search for vehicles.

On Firefox and Edge browsers I couldn't find any critical bugs and the website performed well.

Following the findings I found I recommend to do functional and regression testing on Google Chrome browser
